Insights into history, fieldwork, insiders'
perspective and storyline

Tribal Freedom Movements

- The tribal communities across India were the first to offer resistance to the British East India Company and later to the British Crown.
- From 1778 to 1947, the tribal communities have resisted the alien colonial ecosystem being enforced by the British Empire through their civil, military, judicial, education, etc. policies.
- The contribution of the tribal communities has been overshadowed by the mainstream narrative of the freedom of India.

Field work :- Unsaid aspects of the Tribal Freedom Movements

- Literature alone cannot provide a comprehensive view of the tribal freedom movements.
- Field work is essential to understand the movement, events, causes, background, cultural nuances, impact and outcome.
- The Tribal Freedom Movements were predominantly guerilla warfare, which makes the study and exhibition of geography essential.
- Tribal Memory patterns are unique and can only be understood in the field be they in form of songs, stories, or artefacts.

Bhoomkal - Bastar, Chhattisgarh

Overview:

- In 1855, Bastar officially came under control of the British
- Bastar was under rule of the Kakatiya Dynasty.
- Between 1774 to 1910 about 10 Tribal Movements occurred in Bastar.
- British Colonial Policies become the cause for resentment.
- The Ghotul Policy of British and its implementation by Panda Baijnath was an important cause of resentment among the communities of Bastar.
- The 1910 Bhoomkal movement was the most prominent and final movement in Bastar
- The movement was led by Gunda Dhur of Dhurva Community with support of Diwan Lal Kalindra Singh of the Kingdom of Bastar (Kakatiya Dynasty).

Vision of bhoomkal

- An introduction to the communities involved in the movement. Bhoomkal like several tribal movements is a multi-tribal movement among which Dhurva being the leaders.
- A experience or feel of local geography is required for the visitor to engage with the history and enabling the community member to feel the connection.
- Tribal Movements were culmination of a series of minor movements which erupted in form of a major mass movement under a charismatic mass leader.
- Background History
  - Presenting the causes of the movement – Changes imposed by British
  - Presenting information about circumstances which led the to 1910 Bhoomkal – Events Predating the major mass movement
  - Rise of Resistance and Introduction of Leaders
  - Immediate Cause – Diwan Panda Baijnath and British interference in general administration

History and Community memory

How

- Narration of events designed to attract attention and interest of people of varying age brackets with special focus on youth.
- Events are to be presented Chronologically with dates, location, and personnel involved.

Tribal Movements

including Bhoomkal did not just initiate. There were a series of cumulative movements leading upto these major movements.

Introduction to Leaders:

- Lal Kalindra Singh
- Veer Gunda Dhur
- Veer Debri Dhur
- Khodiya Dhur
- Madia Manjhi

Events of History

- Preparation of War with weapons
- Message Distribution
- War Tactics
- Actual events with Maps, dates, and personnel involved.
- British Response
- Important Battles
- Outcome

Ghotul policy – primary cause

- Ghotuls are centres of education for the tribal communities of Bastar and neighbouring regions.
- The Ghotuls of Muriya community are very popular especially through works of Verrier Elwin.
- British aimed to end Ghotuls and forcibly introduce western British education.
- Panda Baijnath committed acts of atrocities upon parents who refused to send their children to British schools. Parents were hung from trees and chilly powder were thrown in their eyes.
- End of Ghotul was a civilizational question for the Tribal communities since the traditional community knowledge and traditions were passed down to next generation through Ghotuls.
- Ghotul was an important element for tribals of Bastar, for Bhoomkal. The architecture of the Ghotul is also intriguing and simple. The gallery can be designed to give a feel of a Ghotul where story of Bhoomkal is being taught as the experiential output.

Veer gunda dhur and bhoomkal

- Important to explain the significance and meaning of the names of movement.
- Bhoomkal means Earthquake in colloquial terminology, which as per our field work is probably is a word from Halbi language.
- Gunda Dhur was an exonym give to the leader by British while his birth name was Dhurva Bagha Dhur. Important to present the versions of the meaning of the names.
- The Societal Term 'Dhur' means leader similar to Sarpanch, Patel, Munda etc.
- Background story to the rise of Gunda Dhur through story of personal tragedy of his sisters Kanakdai and Manakdai (Field work input)

War preparation and insignia

Dhurva Bow and Arrow

- The tribals of Bastar spread the message of war through 'Dara Miri' – which was an artefact crafted with cultural significance and was passed through villages in form of a secretive message.
- Oath of Maa Danteshwari – Participants took oath which exhibits the significance of Maa Danteshwari for Bastar.
- Warriors of Bhoomkal movement were called Bhoomkaleya, the three pronged war strategy was to cut off communication, cut off transport and attack important centres of British.
- Bhoomkal Divas of 6th February 1910 – Mass Movement breaks out.

Dara Miri

Events of history

- Important battles and events are to be presented with maps, dates, names of personnel in a story telling method.
- In Bhoomkal movement, the Battle of Khadag Ghat was a significant turning point wherein British Duplicity led to the defeat of the Bhoomkaleya's. The event turned the tide in favour of the British.
- British response, arrival of reinforcements and British Military Tactics.
- The Battle of Alnaar – British through coercion avail information and undertake an attack in night and cause death of 500 Bhoomkaleya and capture of Madia Manjhi and Debri Dhur.
- Gunda Dhur and Khodiya Dhur escape
- Arrest of Lal Kalindra Singh
- Hanging of Madia Manjhi and Debri Dhur
- Execution of Final Suppression by British through their military might and its outcomes.
- Period of Trials and Sentences of the Captured. 78 were found guilty of which 27 died in prisons.

Legacy of bhoomkal

- Gunda Dhur was never captured.
- British had reward for Rs. 10,000 for his capture, which was never claimed – showcasing the loyalty of the community towards Gunda Dhur.
- No clarity is available on the fate of Gunda Dhur.
- Community narrative states he escaped into Odisha where he had sent his family before the war.
- Collation of community folk songs to express this aspect of the movement.
- During our field work in Netanaar, the native of Gunda Dhur – the descendants had sung for us a small portion of the folk songs of the community.
- H.L. Shukla's Book from 1991 - 'Bhumkāl, the Tribal Revolt in Bastar: The Story of Gundādhūr and His Movement'. Sharada Prakashan documents a song titled, 'Bhoomkal Git'

Contemporary aspects and community ownership

- The memory of Gunda Dhur among Dhurva today through community songs, stories or memorials.
- A video of his descendants speaking of the memory of Gunda Dhur
- Government recognition to Bhoomkal and its leaders – Holidays and Institutions named.
- Events, holidays, or festivities organised by Community in memory of Gunda Dhur
- Bhoomkal Smriti Divas

Visualisation of leaders

- Often, visualization of the leaders is a difficulty since photographs of most leaders are not available.
- In such situation, the Dhurva community has come up with an aspiring methodology. The “Sambhagiya Dhurva Samaj”, an organisation of and by the Dhurva has developed a visual of Veer Gunda Dhur and Veer Debri Dhur by utilising the face of the current descendant and physical features as described by the community elders.
- This method can be utilised by NTFFM for all leaders where photographs are unavailable and descendants are alive.
